Extermination Campaign to Prevent Bubonic Plague Advocated by Cumming.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Calling attention to the appearance of bubonic plague in several American and Mexican gulf ports and renewing his warning regarding the introduction of plague from Mediterranean ports, which are known to be infected, Surgeon-General Cumming today urged communities throughout the country, and especially along the coast, to inaugurate rat extermination campaigns.

"Bubonic plague is primarily a disease of rodents, especially rats," said Gen. Cumming, and the disease can be controlled effectively by measures directed against the rat. The extermination of rats also is to be destroyed because of the tremendous economic damage they cause.

According to conservative estimates by the public health service there is at least one rat for every person in the United States. The annual upkeep per rodent was computed by the same authorities as $1.80 in Great Britain, $1.20 in Denmark, and $1 in France. The extermination of rats in the United States probably exceeds the estimate for Great Britain, Dr. Cumming said. One-half a cent a day he considered conservative, but even on this computation, it costs the United States $100,000,000 a year to support its population. This does not include mice.

The United States public health service is preparing detailed training experts to assist communities in organizing the fight against rats, said Gen. Cumming. "The latter effort has been had extensive practical experience in this work, and know how to make it really effective."

The health service has just published a bulletin dealing with methods for rat extermination. Copies may be obtained by addressing the United States public health service, Washington.

Three other houses were broken into and threats of shooting made against the occupants. One of these houses was destroyed and two were damaged by fire.
